Legal Services Description

Internet Behavior Consulting (IBC) will conduct a complete psychosexual evaluation and case review. The evaluation and case review will include a 3 to 4-hour clinical interview with the client, peer-reviewed research review, administer and interpret comprehensive assessments – including psychological testing, full risk assessment, review of all discovery, consideration of technology factors associated with the case, interview of family members (where appropriate), and consultations with the referring attorney. IBC will provide a written report(s) incorporating the results of the evaluation as well as central technological and psychological themes relevant to the case.

Sexual offense cases involving technology are often impacted by concepts such as online disinhibition, anonymity, unlimited access to sexual content, sexual fantasy & role play, and sexual communication. Research indicates that the digital world may contribute to the collapsing of boundaries and normalize sexual behavior that the individual may consider inappropriate in the offline world. Additionally, there is now a body of research indicating that individuals whose sexual offense involves technology are often less at risk for sexual recidivism than other types of individuals who commit sexual offenses. IBC will address how technology and psychology combine together to create unique dynamics in sexual offense cases.
